Ottawa Zionists Prepare to Entertain Convention Visitors

Ottawa, June 21 (Special).—A pre-convention meeting of the Zionist Council of Ottawa was held on Tuesday evening, June 13, in the Assembly Hall of the King Edward Hebrew Institute. Mr. J. Holzman presided. Following the opening remarks by the presiding officer, Mr. A. J. Freiman, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, was called upon. He gave a brief but emphatic outline of the Zionist movement in general, also calling attention to the great and indomitable work of the Young Judaeans in Montreal on behalf of the cause. He gave specific cases where some of the members of that organization, aside from their labors for Zionism in Canada, are to leave for Palestine in the very near future to carry on the work on the holy soil. Such is the spirit of Young Judaea, he said, and they are to be envied. It remains for the elders to assist them in their good and noble undertakings. He also outlined the program of the coming convention. The principal speaker at the mass meeting, which will be held Sunday morning at 10.30, in the Russell Theater, will be Mr. Nahum Sokolow. The Council prepared a number of resolutions which will be presented through the resolution committee at the convention. The sittings of the convention will take place at the Chateau Laurier. The various committees appointed are as follows: Hall committee, Messrs. I. Sugarman and J. Holzman; reception committee, Mr. J. Holzman, chairman; transportation committee, Mr. I. Sugarman, chairman, assisted by Mr. L. Epstein; entertainment committee, Mrs. A. H. Coplan, Mrs. J. N. Nathanson and Mr. B. Edelson; ushers' committee, Mr. R. Vexler, chairman. The chairmen of the different committees are to select their assistants. It was also announced that Mrs. A. J. Freiman will give a reception in honor of the delegates to the convention, at her summer residence, Meach Lake, Ontario, about fourteen miles from Ottawa. The transportation committee is charged with the duty of seeing that all delegates are conveniently conveyed to Meach Lake, for which purpose a number of cars will be at the disposal of the committee. The reception will take place Sunday afternoon, June 2. The ladies appointed on the entertainment committee for the occasion are: Mesdames A. H. Coplan, B. Smith, J. N. Nathanson and J. Holzman.

HARVARD HEAD DRAFTS SECRET LETTER ON JEWS

President Lowell Has Prepared Form Answer for Alumni Who Have Written About Discrimination

Sifting Vital, Says Elliott

Mayor Curley Asserts If One Race Is Barred From College, Others Will Follow

(Special to CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW)

Cambridge, Mass., June 20.—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University has prepared a form letter to send to alumni who have been writing him regarding the charge that the university is to discriminate against Jews, it was learned to-day. He refused to make public a copy of the letter, saying that it was a private communication and should be considered so by himself as well as by those to whom it is sent.

Harvard officials refused to comment on the letter made public yesterday at Cleveland by Alfred A. Benesch, a Harvard graduate, in which President Lowell was quoted as admitting "the growing Antisemitic feeling among the students," and announcing that a committee would be appointed in a few days to study the advisability of reducing the number of Jewish students enrolled. Officials said they had not seen the letter, and as far as they knew, the personnel of any such committee had not been decided on.

This committee is being appointed in accordance with the recent vote of the board of overseers authorizing President Lowell to appoint a committee drawn from the faculties of the university "to consider and report to the governing boards principles and methods for more effective sifting of candidates for admission to the university." It is understood that this committee probably will take many months to study the problem and that no further action will be taken nor any change made in the existing entrance requirements until the committee has reported.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot's frankness at the Associated Harvard Clubs meeting yesterday did more than anything else to clear the Harvard atmosphere, even though he told plainly without using the actual words that the Harvard faculty had twice considered and passed resolutions in which there were references to racial discrimination. While Dr. Eliot did not say so, it is evident that premature unofficial publication of these Harvard plans caused the faculty to take a new tack, and they were practically forced to call upon higher authorities to help them devise a plan for sifting the incoming classes of the university. This sifting process will not only affect the college department, but is to be used in every department of the university, it became known at the Associated Harvard Clubs meeting yesterday.

FEDERATION ACTIVITIES

The Co-operative Board of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies has hundreds of children who are undernourished and underfed, simply because there are no funds to provide for them adequately. There are a large number of families who are in direst distress and who are becoming pauperized and demoralized because we have not sufficient funds to put them on their feet. There are a number of immigrant tubercular patients in incipient stages, who cannot be sent to public institutions because they will become public charges and will be subject to deportation. These people should immediately be sent to private sanitariums or to the country, where they could get fresh air and proper nourishment. For lack of funds, they are permitted to gradually die away. The plight of many poor and sick people is so great that words cannot be found to describe it. The subscribers and friends of the Federation are urgently requested to send in their subscriptions at once.

The Family Welfare Board assisted, during the last month, over one hundred families, expending in actual relief, $2,400.00. Three families were given sufficient funds to establish them in their respective trades. New applications for assistance come into the office of the Federation every day. Some of them are very heart-rending, but for lack of funds, very little can be done for them. The Federation must also support its affiliated organizations.

The Personal Service and Legal Aid department of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies has been very busy during the last month, giving advice on various matters which was very helpful to the people concerned. Twenty-five cases were investigated for the various Jewish charities of the United States and Canada.

The office of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies will be glad to assist those who desire to send food packages to Russia free of charge, since it officially represents the Joint Distribution Committee which works in co-operation with the American Relief Committee.

Immigrant Aid Work in Toronto Fills Great Need

Immigrant aid work in Toronto is now in full swing, as far as the relief-seeking public and the relief-giving Immigrant Aid Society are concerned. The office of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, Toronto branch, opened in the Federation Chambers, at the Zionist Building, on Wednesday evening, and since then cases have come pouring in.

Sceptics there are who decry the need of such work, or of such an organization in the city of Toronto. To such individuals is extended an invitation to visit our office, to listen to the pitiable tales of woe of anxious, bewildered and panic-stricken parents, husbands, wives, brothers and sisters, and then witness the sighs of relief and the brightening of faces as aid is rendered by necessary advice, enlightening information, and timely dispatching of telegrams, cables, etc., as the case may be.

Although the office has been open to the public such a short time, it is already possible to describe the nature of the work by relating one or two examplary cases that the secretary has begun to work on: A young girl, eighteen years of age, orphaned both of father and mother, had been sent for by a sister, the only relative she has in the whole wide world. Fifteen weeks ago she arrived in Antwerp, and was there detained on account of her eyes. Now, when her eyes are cured, she is not allowed to enter Canada because her passport no longer complies with the new immigration laws. In this case, all efforts are being made to prevail on the Minister of Immigration to permit this girl to come here.

A seventeen-year-old boy, travelling to his parents in Toronto, is being detained in Quebec. One man wishes to send for his wife and children; another has his parents en route to Canada. To all these, the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society in Toronto gives the needed aid in accordance with the nature of the case. Here a telegram is dispatched to the Quebec port, or to the Montreal head office, or to the Ottawa branch; there a cable is sent to Antwerp, or to Dantzig, or to Warsaw. In all cases, and at all times, the latest amendments to the Canadian immigration laws are interpreted and explained in Yiddish or in English, to all who come seeking advice. Miss S. M. Gold is administrative secretary.

PERSONALITIES

BY OBSERVER

(New York Special to The Canadian Jewish Review)

Supposing for a change we speak of some personalities whom we have not met. It does not offer much exercise for the imagination, but it may afford a welcome relief for our readers from the monotony of our weekly parade of fame.

First, then, let us introduce you to a gentleman who occupies the post of director of a big charity. He is a serious-looking man with furrowed forehead and eyes shadowed with care. His back is slightly bent from constant bending over a desk, and his head aches from constant overwork. This gentleman comes forth to greet you and gives you a warm handclasp, gripping your fingers firmly. "No," he replies in answer to your queries, "I am not at all interested in Greenwich Village or Broadway. Furthermore, what Galli-Curci does is none of my business, and the next show Ziegfeld puts on can very well do without my presence Neither does my heart burn for the latest in literature. I like to read, of course, and do somewhat, but I abominate cafes where the intelligentzia foregather. Bobbed hair has the most superficial interest for me, and I don't know how women tweeze their eyebrows. I like to wear a palm beach suit for the sake of the coolness, but I can never keep it in proper shape. My ties are of whatever kind comes to my hands at the furnishing store, but I generally prefer a black to a yellow checked. I have never spent more than seventy-five cents at a barber shop, and have never had my nails manicured nor my locks singed. I would like to indulge in sports, but I feel I am getting on in years of discretion, and so I do not go in for tennis and boating with company, and I would not know the difference between Benny Leonard and Jack Dempsey. I am fond of walks, but I do not walk in the moonlight nor do I join in moonlight excursions. I would like to be known as a wit, but I am not, and I am no good as a raconteur. I am a married man and like home life. Right here in the office I have a few assistants who do a great deal more work than I, and I am grateful to them for it. All these elaborate systems that you see here are due to my taking the advice of my help. I don't get all my ideas for advertising campaigns from the newspaper and subway ads, and my chief study here is not the next annual report. What takes up most of my time is to gather as much money for the institution as can, and see that it is run on an efficient basis, and if I were to be offered a better job I would not dream of leaving here, for I could not change my interest so quickly."

From this gentleman we progress to the president of the institution. He is a big, hearty man with a cheery voice and kindly manner. "Am I a real estate man?" he repeats your question. "Not at all. I make soda water. Will it suprise you if I say that I am a very religious man? I go to synagog on the Sabbath as well as on the High Holidays, and I do not allow my son to eat chop suey. My daughter does not think of intermarriage, and we do not believe in Christmas presents. Furthermore, my wife does not buy Easter bonnets.

"I am president of this charity because I am really moved by a desire to be of service to Jewry and to these poor people who are not as fortunate as I am. I don't give a brass button if my name never appears in the papers, and I don't try to edge into the spotlight on every occasion. I give generous hints to guests at dinners that I could not make a speech without sending them off to sleep, and so I am never asked to make an address. On such occasions, when it becomes absolutely necessary for me to speak in public, it causes me the greatest agony of mind to think that the speech was prepared for me by a secretary or some poor devil of a struggling student who thinks I can be of use to him some time. I have given orders strict to the director of our institution not to send out statements in my name unless I really make them. The same applies to plans and undertakings. I don't want to get the credit for something unless I actually do it myself.

"I really don't know why they selected me to be president of this institution. I have had very little education and know nothing of the social problems. For the life of me I could not outline a policy of action unless I had my executive committee to tell me how. I suppose I have some money because people do drink quite a lot of soda during the hot weather, and I don't think thrice before I make a donation; if I see a blind man I always try to accommodate his box as well as the committee that calls upon me, but otherwise I am a most insignificant man. I know all about soda water, and I may be able to tell you something about Herzl, but there my man-of-the-world knowledge ends."

The Yiddish theatrical season has now altogether ended and all the tag ends of the season have been gathered in. New York's leading Yiddish theater, the Yiddish Art Theater, has now passed its fourth milestone, and it is announced that with the close of the season Maurice Schwartz, the director of the Yiddish Art Theater, will have given his 1,500th performance.

The case of Schwartz and the new Yiddish theater movement in New York forms one of the most curious pieces of theatrical history. Undoubtedly the Jewish stage is in Mr. Schwartz's debt, for he was practically the first professional Yiddish actor to break away from the old standards of the Jewish dramatic production and strive to give something better and more worth while. Yet Schwartz is one of the least important personalities in the Jewish theater. He is a good actor, speaking of acting as the ability to mimic, but Schwartz as an actor has brought nothing to the Jewish stage and will leave nothing to it.

Here we have a mystery; an artist of everyday talents creating the best Yiddish theater in America. And this is how the mystery is unraveled. Four years ago Maurice Schwartz was an actor on Second Avenue. By dint of his youth, his ability to copy personality, and great ambitious impulse, he had reached the leading-man stage. In acting, Schwartz was on the lower levels, but he was blessed with a most insatiable ambition to become his own producer. The war had driven out the German players from the New York Irving Place Theater, and Schwartz saw an opportunity for another Yiddish theater. In association with Max R. Willner, whose only interest in the theater is from the business angle, he leased the Irving Place Theater.

Now, aside from his ambitious spurrings, Schwartz's greatest virture is his deference to the opinions of celebrities, and once the news of a new theater got around, every suggestion or a good theater brought about by the revolt against the miserable state of the then Jewish theater, was showered upon Schwartz. Schwartz suddenly found himself elevated from an ordinary actor to a useful personality from whom great things were asked.

Under this influence Schwartz was moved to heed every counsel given him by the Yiddish literati and eminent well-wishers of the Jewish theater. He assembled a personnel which has not since been equalled in a Jewish theater in New York. Every young artist thought here was a haven of refuge, and flocked to the Schwartz banner. In his first season at the Irving place, Schwartz had with him Celia Adler, Ben Ami, Ludwig Satz, Bertha Gerstin --practically the cream of Jewish Mandate Postponed—Lord Balfour's Speech to League Council — Sir Herbert Samuel in House of Commons—Arabs Address Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill.

London, May 26, 1922.

We have to thank Mr. Balfour with regard to the Palestine Mandate, that we may now not have to wait until the month of September before something definite is settled. Happily, thanks to this gentleman's splendid efforts, it has been arranged that a special meeting shall be held in July for the purpose of considering the Mandate. It is not likely that by the time this matter is finally brought forward the present opposition will have died down, and it is very unlikely that the present draft terms will be accepted without modification. The opposition to the Mandate is, of course, very widely placed. One might mention the Arabs who wish Palestine to remain Arab and, for that matter, not only do not wish the present Zionist policy to be maintained, but also object to the British yoke. But the most important obstacle appears to be placed by the Vatican, which raises many a quibble which really should be quite easily brushed aside. They call for the security of the holy places, as if they would not be as secure from degradation under the Mandate as they were under the Turk. Indeed, this question of the holy places has been pressed so hard recently that Lord Balfour in his address to the Council of the League last week, did not hesitate to show the absurdity of the alleged fear. He said;

"Doubtless a wave of anxiety has invaded a certain section of public opinion which fears a repercussion in the religious domain. This surprises me infinitely. How can one believe that religious interests can be endangered by the transference of authority from a Moslem power to a Christian power, especially when this Christian power is Britain? No power has shown itself more fair in regard to different religious beliefs; no power has done more to insure justice and avoid wounding different opinions. Britain has had great experience in these questions. The world will admit that it has proved its generosity to most diverse religious opinions. Britain is a Protestant country, and in no Catholic or Protestant country are Protestants and Catholics more free. In these circumstances any fear that the transference of the guardianship of the holy places from a Moslem to a Christian power is devoid of foundation. . . . The public is often mistaken concerning the limit and substance of the exact powers of the League and the Council in regard to the question of a mandate, he said. "Mandates are not the creation of the League and cannot be theatrical art as it turned out later. Schwartz's first season was a sensation. Then Schwartz's own personality predominated, and he became less reliant on advice. The second season saw a split in the personnel. Celia Adler, Ben-Ami and Satz left. Schwartz could not keep them. The Garden Theater opened, with the idea of being all that Schwartz was told he could make of the Irving Place. With the opening of the former theater, the Irving Place Theater declined to the level of Second Avenue, Schwartz himself taking part in a musical comedy. The Garden Theater was in the ascendency and would have remained so if it were not that there was no responsible artistic personality in whom the players could place confidence and respect. Reicher, the first director, was a "goy," to all intents of the Yiddish theater; Ben-Ami, who succeeded him, was himself an actor, and a temperamental one at that, and harmony was impossible. The owner, Schnitzer, was by profession a manufacturer of feathers, whose wife was ambitious to become a great actress, and he certainly could not control his theater. In less than two seasons the Garden Theater collapsed and Schwartz, who had been in the background all this time, seized his chance and took it over, together with Celia Adler, smoothing over contritely his former differences with her.

Again Schwartz became open to advice and gained favor. His first production, "Der Dibbuk," was a success. Thereafter practically failures were the rule at the theater, with the exception of "Rags," which ran for six weeks by virtue of the enthusiasm of Ab Cahn, the Editor of the "Forward."

At the Garden Theater, Schwartz is the sole owner, having severed connection with Willner. Left to his own responsibility, Schwartz was faced with the inability of choosing plays that were theatrically adaptable. Anxious to defer to critical opinion, he chose a variety of plays, "literary" in every respect, and did not see their incompleteness as stage productions. Without the necessary editing they failed.

So, while Schwartz glories in completing four seasons of "art theater," everything is not as glorious as it should be. Talented folk come to him because he owns the only theater in New York which has a policy of good drama. But the head of the theatre cannot manipulate his forces, and so the fifth season of the Yiddish Art Theater promises more doubts than anything else. It may be said with some surety that were another Yiddish theater to open in New York with the aim of producing good drama, Schwartz would find himself as deserted as when the Garden Theater opened in opposition to the Irving Place.

At least, this is our view of the solution of the Maurice Schwartz question in the American Jewish theatre.

EDITORIAL

THE MEXICAN MIRAGE

THERE is an old Yiddish folk saying that "when one is drowning one will grasp at a straw." The psychology underlying this expression is responsible for the sensation recently created by President Obregon of Mexico in a letter to a Jewish lawyer in Chicago. In this letter the President of Mexico invites Jewish immigrants to come and colonize in Mexico which is possessed of millions of hectares of land suitable for agricultural purposes. It is rumored further that many favorable concessions will also be granted to Jewish settlers. In view of the vagueness of the offer since nothing very definite, except the invitation, is contained in the letter, it is surmised that the land intended for Jewish colonization is located near the American border and is about sixty-four thousand miles square. It is supposed to be fertile and well watered soil.

Climatically Mexico possesses a colorful variety, varying from the low tropical valleys infested by wild animals of every description on the one hand, to the high well-watered plateaus in the interior of Mexico, which are moderate in temperature all the year round, whose soil yields as high as three crops a year.

Mexico is a land of mysteries and constant guerrilla warfare. Its population is composed of Indian half-breeds, Spaniards, Chinese, Germans and Americans. The native Indians are spoken of as "quiet, submissive and untutored." For generations the natives have been the serfs of foreigners. Prior to 1910 when the "daily revolutions" started in Mexico, there were about 15,000 Jews living in the country. The large majority of them were of German and Austrian extraction, the rest being Jews from the Levant, and known amongst the general population as "Arabs." The former kept the fine shops in the large towns while the latter were the poor peddlers of the provinces. Since 1910, however, most of the foreigners residing in Mexico left the country with the result that the economic and industrial prosperity of the country has suffered. The Jews in all of Mexico to-day number merely a few thousand and they consist mostly of those coming from Turkey. Their economic as well as social position is very low and they play practically no part in the economic, cultural or social life of the country.

The dominant religious element of Mexico is Roman Catholic, but the Catholic Church of Mexico has woven into its theologic and ritual texture many of the native superstitutions. Though there is no anti-Jewish feeling in the country, the regard which the Mexican has for the Jew is, to say the least, not a flattering one. He regards him as the Judas Iscariot of the nations, and it is from this despicable character that the Mexican gets his conception of the Jew. The governments of the country are unstable, and armed rebellions by irresponsible brigand bands easily recruited from the starving peons are a constant menace to the peace and safety of the country. Mexico is controlled largely, if not exclusively, by foreign capital, whose only interest in the land is economic exploitation of her vast natural resources, more particularly oil. The governments are dependent for their stability and power upon these dominant foreign corporations, who war against one another in an incessant struggle for concessions.

It is in the midst of this milieu that it is proposed to colonize Jews from Eastern and Central Europe. Already large steamship companies advertise the possibilities of Mexican settlement in the foreign Yiddish press and are planning to operate special services to Mexico. From a steamship company's point of view the situation is an excellent one, particularly at this time, when the doors of Canada and the United States are practically shut to our people. If the matter were not taken so seriously we might even make bold to suggest that the offer of President Obregon was "inspired" and is being advanced by the steamship companies' interests. Far be it from us, however, to introduce levity into so earnest a matter.

Even though the doors of the United States and Canada are shut, and Palestine seems, for the present, only able to digest a limited number of Jewish immigrants, and some outlet must be found for our people—in spite of all these conditions it is a matter of much doubt whether the offer of Mexico should be taken seriously. In our judgment—NO.

Let us analyse the offer. It invites Jews to come as individuals and settle as farmers. This being the case, why should Jewish immigrants go to Mexico? Canada offers much better opportunities in this direction. The Jews are not invited to come as an ethnic group and settle as such, in a large tract of land which will be granted outright to them alone, and where they can have complete autonomy There is nothing unique or new about Mexico's offer. The colonization of the I.C.A. in Argentina was on a much broader and freer basis and yet it was a failure. Is there, therefore, any reason to believe that individual family agricultural colonization in Mexico, a far inferior country to either Canada or Argentina, would be more successful?

Even if large groups of Jews should be willing to settle in Mexico and should build up thriving agricultural colonies, what guarantee would they have of safety from the devastating raids of wild natives, who, jealous of the growing success of "foreigners," could easily be incited to dispossess these strangers, who have come and robbed them of what was justly theirs. The government in power, no matter who it would be, would be powerless to quell such raids unless it were willing to have a permanent garrison of troops stationed for the protection of the colonists. Without such protection, the Jewish settler would have to be prepared to contend with what all pioneering frontier settlers in the United States and Canada had to contend with, namely: plow with one hand while fighting the Indians with the other. The Jewish immigrant, massacred and tired, is not prepared to undertake this kind of pioneering.

There is still another consideration that must be guarded against. Whatever concessions are offered by the Obregon government will no doubt be sincere, yet Mexico is not a country of stable governments. No one can safely predict what the morrow will bring. Yesterday Carranza was in the saddle, to-day it is Obregon, to-morrow it may be some other military leader. The concessions granted by one government (dominated as these changing governments are by foreign economic influences) may not be found advantageous by its successors, particularly if the concessions granted to the Jewish colonists turned out to be located on "oil lands," which are greatly sought after by foreign capital. It would be no breach in the political etiquette of Mexico for the concessions granted by the Obregon government to be retracted by the next government with the result that thousands of Jewish immigrants might again find themselves with staff in hand wandering in search of new "concessions"(?)

For the reasons above-mentioned we do not believe that the offer made by President Obregon to the Jewish immigrants will be favorably received by the Jewish masses.

If Mexico wants Jewish immigrants she must be prepared to throw her doors open wide to them, without tieing any strings to her offer or making any conditions as to agricultural settlers, etc. Mexico would profit greatly if Jews entered the country and built up its economic and industrial possibilities. There is no other immigrant element, which sould be more desirable from Mexico's point of view. If this were Mexico's invitation to the Jew then it would be taken seriously and both Mexico and the Jew would benefit.

The Episcopalian "Church Society for Promoting Christianity Among Jews" has suspended operations according to the year book of that church. But who are we to complain? We like to think of the Jewish race as one innured to all sorts of deprivations. If the Episcopalians don't want to spend any more money on us, all right then. Their are other psychopathic sects with money. We can't have everything.

Rabbi Simon Glazer, of Kansas City, with five children of his own, has adopted three pogrom orphans from the Ukraine. Parents with eight children all of whom speak the same language and observe the same Queensberry rules, ought to start a movement to have medals poured and molded for Rabbi Glazer.

> The House of Representatives of the state of Massachusetts has passed a bill to have removed from the walls of the Boston Public Library, John Sargent's "The Synagog," the painting which has been the subject of attack on the ground that it depicts the decline of the Jewish religion. With the picture laid away in some educational institution for study as a work of art, as the bill provides, we hope that the troubles of Massachusetts Jews are at an end. Art and politics belong together about as well as oil and water. Either Massachusetts people must be overly sensitive to the influence of symbolic pictures or the Jews of the state don't have enough to do to keep them busy.

H. L. Menken said recently in The Baltimore Evening Sun that a liberal as such "is necessarily convinced that the people crave better things than they have, and would be grateful if such things were given to them. But this is true, I believe, only within very narrow limits, and those chiefly material. In the realm of ideas they are satisfied with what they have and resent any effort to improve it. No objection to the imbecility of moving pictures has ever come from the habitual patrons of moving pictures; it is brought forward by those who seldom suffer from it personally."

Perhaps this accounts for the way crowds stood first on one foot and then on the other to see Rudolph Valentino and Gloria Swanson in "Beyond the Rocks."

"Did Thoreau expect us—Americans or Frenchmen or any men—to live as he had done, abstaining from coffee, tobacco, meat, and other luxuries? Hardly that; but he did want us to live more simply and to realize that life need not be complex. He wanted us to see that if we had soul enough we could do without luxuries and still be happy; that all the luxuries of the earth could not make up for soul if it was lacking; and that we were slaves not to an exterior and malevolent fate but to our own inexorable and undisciplined desires. Surely this man who found that the toil of a few weeks sufficed to feed, clothe, and shelter him for a year had something to say to his century and ours. He wanted us to know that we shall be rich in proportion to the number of things we learn to do without; that we may reach the divine that is in us, if we will starve out the bestial; that if we but use the souls that were given us, we may make of life a constant joy instead of a slavery and boredom. What his experiment taught him and can teach us is that life is splendidly fertile if only we have the capacity for it and will meet it honestly and open-eyed."—Albert Edmund Trombley in "The Nation."

Now that many of the confirmation presents have been taken downtown and exchanged for something useful, and Jewry everywhere has fluttered back to what President Harding calls a state of normalcy, Charles Joseph, of the Jewish Criterion rises to object to the way confirmation becomes increasingly a social affair. Of course, confirmants don't seem to know any more in georgette crepe than they used to in white lawn in the days when every boy was expected to wax enthusiastic over a pearl-handled pen, but we have Truth Week, Author's Week, Religious Book Week, and the Lord knows what. Why shouldn't caterers, modistes and florists thrive during Confirmation week as well as publishers, et cetera, when their turn comes?

fied by the Council. The role of the League is exclusively to see that the clauses agree with the decisions of the Allies and that their application is made conformable to their intentions. A mandate is essentially a restriction which the conquerors impose on themselves in the general interest of humanity. The League's only role is to aid the Allies to apply the measures they have adopted. It results clearly that those who fear or hope that the terms of the Balfour Declaration will be modified are mistaken."

On Tuesday last, Sir Herbert Samuel addressed a meeting of about 150 members of Parliament, representative of all parties, at the House of Commons, on "The Position in Palestine." The proceedings were private and were presided over by Lord Robert Cecil. Sir Herbert, in the course of his address, is said to have stated that, on the whole, the situation in Palestine was satisfactory. Immigration was proceeding satisfactorily. He denied that the new Jewish population, who were "making good" and of whom he spoke extremely highly, were Bolsheviks. Palestine was going to be a national home for the Jews, but not the kind of national home that the full-blooded Zionists had in their minds. As time went on, the Jews were bound to increase their numbers, and must ultimately be in the majority. Mr. Asquith moved a cordial vote of thanks to Sir Herbert Samuel.

The Palestine Arab delegation now in London, according to a Reuter message, has sent a letter to Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill to the effect that they learn with great surprise that the Council of the League is considering the Mandate with a view to ratification. They continue to state that they object to the Mandate question being continued with while they are still negotiating with the British Government on the future of Palestine. They say the Arab population can never accept the Mandate in its present form. They also state that the ratification of the Mandate will not pacify Palestine, and appeal to the gentlemen in question to stop consideration of the Mandate until such time as they have been able to thresh the matter out with them.

President Eliot's Letter

Adhered to Original Vote

Doctor Eliot, in reply to a question from C. C. Little, a Harvard graduate, who is president of the University of Maine, and who sought to find out why the university authorities had never denied that they considered barring Jews, said:

"There has been a stir at Harvard on the Jewish question. We must talk plainly on these matters, gentlemen. There has been a stir and some members of the faculty of arts and sciences got prematurely excited on the subject, and in the face of a confused state of mind, and incited by urgent speeches, did adopt two measures of doubtful expediency. After an intermission, they rescinded both and adhered to an original vote they had adopted.

"This first vote has been brought before the overseers and, with excellent modifications, has been adopted by the overseers, whereby a committee of fair and selected men has been appointed not only to make out the facts of the present status of racial percentages in the whole university, but also to study the means of better sifting the candidates for admission to all departments. In my judgment, that is as wise action as can be taken to-day.

"In the disturbed state of the public mind on Semitism in general the wisest step that can be taken is to consider the matter and later, if advisable, take deliberate action. I hope this body, doubtless split by opinions and prejudices, will take no action, but will confide it to this committee, so well appointed by President Lowell."

Intolerable, Says Mayor

Mayor Curley of Boston, in Bunker Hill speeches, said of Harvard to-day:

"These people seek to bar men because of an accident of birth. This is the most intolerable thing that could be done by any educational institution. The men who are barred are not responsible for their race any more than I am for mine.

"God gave them their parents and their race as He has given me mine. All of us under the constitution are guaranteed equality, without regard to race, creed or color. When Harvard loses sight of that fundamental, we who are not yet discriminated against should assist those who are not obtaining their equal rights as guaranteed them as American citizens.

"If the Jew is barred to-day, the Italian will be to-morrow. Then the Spaniard and Pole, and at some future date the Irish."

OTTAWA

On Sunday last, June 18th, the Ottawa Men's Zion Society held a meeting for the purpose of electing delegates to the convention. Mr. J. Holzman presided. Before election was proceeded with, a general debate on Zionism was carried on by several members present. During the discussion it was brought out that the present system of "districts" defeated its own purpose for which it was inaugurated, and that the system of "local societies" has been a better success. The convention is to be asked that the system of "locals" be reinstituted. The announcement of the recent move by the general executive with regard to the enfranchisement of donators of over twelve dollars to the Keren Hayesod, extending them the vote regardless whether such donators are registrants or not, was not met with any overwhelming acclamations. Although opinions appeared to be equally divided, yet the prevailing atmosphere was not of the acquiescent kind. No doubt the Convention may be called upon to discuss the "eleventh hour" order-in-council of enfranchisement. There may be good and sound reasons for such a move, however, and the supreme voice of the delegates will pass judgment on that. A number of resolutions were passed for recommendation to the convention. The following gentlemen will represent the Ottawa Men's Zion Society at the convention: Mr. J. Holzman, Mr. B. Goldfield, Mr. M. Lachowitz and Mr. L. Epstein.

At a meeting of the Zionist Branch of the Ottawa Hebrew Benefit Society, held last Sunday morning, the following gentlemen were elected delegates to the coming Zionist Convention: Mr. N. Metrick, Mr. M. Finkelstein and Mr. I. L. Cohen.

Inquiry at Annapolis

He was graduated from the academy this month and his case was discussed in the senate yesterday at the instance of Senator Howard Sutherland (W. Va.).

Admiral Wilson came to Washington to-day from Annapolis and called on Acting Secretary Roosevelt. Afterward, he characterized the indignity to Kaplan as "a low-down, dirty trick."

Appeal to Harding

Senator Sutherland appealed to President Harding to-day to assist in bringing about the punishment of members of the graduating class who ridiculed Kaplan.

Senator Sutherland declared he was not satisfied with the explanation that it was only an "affair of the students" and would not allow the incident to be closed until proper punishment was meted out to the guilty ones.

The Senator's Letter

In a letter to the President, Senator Sutherland described how the page devoted to Kaplan in the class book was unnumbered and perforated so that it could be torn without defacing the book.

"This treatment of this young man, apparently for the purpose of stigmatizing him because of his nationality, and possibly to act as a deterrent to others of the same nationality from entering the school, I am sure will appeal to you as being inhuman and most reprehensible," Senator Sutherland wrote to the President, "and I call your attention to the circumstances to suggest that proper and immediate steps be taken to punish those guilty of this offense and to prevent its recurrence at any time hereafter in any school controlled by the government."

HAMILTON

Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbloom motored from Buffalo to visit their daughter, Mrs. J. Blumental, 199 Herkimer Street.

Mr. Lew Morris, Buffalo, visited his mother over the week end.

Miss M. Polakoff, Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. Frank.

Miss Belle Cohen entertained last week at her home, 145 Sherman Ave. S.

Among the Hamilton people who motored to Bronte to attend the formal opening of the Toronto Hebrew Maternity Home, were Mr. and Mrs. M. Levy and son, Edgar, Mrs. I. Levy, Mr. D. Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. M. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. S. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. H. Siderski, Miss Lillian Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen.

The closing meeting of the Council of Jewish Women will be held on Tuesday afternoon, June 20th, at the residence of Mrs. S. E. Rose, 225 Queen S. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion.

The Garden Party under the auspices of the Deborah Ladies' Aid, held at the home of Mrs. Godelph, 593 Main E., proved a very successful affair, and a substantial sum was realized for the Society.

The Hadassah Chapter of Hamilton held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening, June 14th, when the delegates for the Zionist Convention were elected.

Summer Home Formally Opened

A most impressive ceremony was the formal opening of the Mothers' and Babes' Summer Rest Home at Bronte, Sunday afternoon, June 18. Over 200 people attended. Rabbi Julius J. Siegel conducted the proceedings and warmly praised the ladies responsible for the Home. Owing to a previous engagement the Rabbi left at an early hour and Mrs. I. H. Siegel presided as chairman. Mrs. S. Helpert welcomed the guests on behalf of the organization. Mrs. Siegel spoke in behalf of Mrs. M. S. Till, chairman of Fresh Air Work, thanking the contributors to a fund of $640, raised on the spot.

The guests entered the cottage after it was formally unlocked by little Leila Yolles, daughter of Mrs. L. Yolles, who donated $125 for the privilege allowed her daughter.

The following sums were paid for the honor of nailing the Mizuza: First nail, Mr. L. Yolles for Mrs. Cohl, $25; Mr. J. Samuels, $25; Mr. Lovitz, $35; Mr. H. Clavir, $25. Nailing on the Mazuza: Mr. A. Samuel, $15; Mrs. H. Papernick, $10; Mrs. H. Palter, $10; and Mrs. J. B. Ellis, $10.

Refreshments were then served, during which Manny Roth, accompanied by his brother, George, gave several violin selections.

A general supply of provisions were brought in, and the following contributions were received:

THE ZIONIST HEBREW FREE SCHOOL CLOSES

The closing exercises of the Zionist Hebrew Free School will take place on Sunday, June 25, at 11 a.m., at the Zionist Institute, Beverley Street, when prizes for efficiency in Hebrew and attendance will be distributed. All who are interested in the work of the school are cordially invited to attend. It will be interesting to many to learn that the school has 350 registered pupils, with an average attendance of 300. The Zionist Institute on Sunday mornings is given up completely to the school, which, up to the present, has been supported by voluntary contributions from worthy members of the community, who have the welfare of the religious training of Jewish children at heart, and also by annual grants from the B'nai Zion Association, Zion Benevolent Association and Hadassah.

HERZL ZION CLUB

The Herzl Zion Club, after successfully coming through the semi-finals two weeks ago, once more showed its debating ability by defeating the Memoph Club, thereby annexing the much coveted sterling silver cup presented to the winning team by Mr. E. F. Singer, as emblematic of the championship of the "Y" debating league. The subject chosen was "Resolved, that an open door policy of immigration into Canada for the next twenty-five years would be more beneficial to the country than a closed door policy." The Herzl, upholding the affirmative, was supported by Messrs. Sam Rosenthal and Moe Rosenberg; and Memoph by Messrs. Harry Landsberg and Dave Cohen.

The judges, consisting of S. W. Newman, a Chicago attorney, and Dr. Ruskin, of Toronto, found some difficulty in arriving at a verdict, and called upon E. F. Singer to help settle the issue. Mr. J. J. Glass presided.

The Herzl Club takes this opportunity to thank Mr. E. F. Singer for his wholehearted support in fostering the literary spirit among clubs and are much appreciative of his gift, which will go to augment an already imposing array of trophies that graces the rooms of the club. At a meeting last Sunday, Harry Rosenthal, chairman of the Boys' Camp committee, addressed the members on the proposed summer camp at Long Branch, and was granted the sum of twenty-five dollars.

The Herzl Zion annual summer dance will take place Tuesday evening, July 25, on board the palace steamer, "Cayuga." Tickets can be bought from any member now, and further details will be given in display ad in the columns of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

The literary committee, spurred on by its successful efforts in putting a winning team through the semi-finals and finals, is now engaged in arranging a fall schedule of lectures and literary events.

ORION CLUB

The Orion Club has elected as officers, the following members: President, C. Oelbaum; vice-president, L. Ceifits; treasurer, M. Weyman; recording secretary, S. Rubinoff; financial secretary, J. Kaminsky; constitutional secretary, S. Bochnik; auditor, S. Solish; and marshall, M. Mulkin.

The chairman of athletic committee is H. Temins; of the social committee, S. Rotish; of the property committee, P. Gordon; of the literary committee, S. Oelbaum; and of the publicity committee, M. Lipsitt.

A novelty dance will be held on Saturday, July 8.

The formal opening of the Montefiore Club Summer Camp on Sunday evening, June 25th, will be something of a novelty, inasmuch as it will be a large Radio Concert, the Radio being installed by the Canadian Sales Co. The results of the football game staged between the Montefiore Club and the Y. M. H. A. on Thursday evening, June 15th, came as something of a surprise to all present, inasmuch as the Y. M. H. The race between the contestants for the King and Queen of the Jewish Orphanage Carnival is on in full swing. Each committee is working harder than the other in order to try and get their candidate out on top. Teas, dances and picnics are being arranged by the different committees, at which the supporters of the different nominees turn out in great style. The race is all the more keen on account of nominations having been closed, and it is now a matter of a couple of weeks before the finals will be learned. The out-of-town contests are coming along in great style, and Vancouver, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary and Yorkton are all working hard to show Winnipeggers what they can do. The Carnival committee of the Orphanage is anxiously awaiting results from the West, as they think the West has "something up its sleeve." Registration booths have been opened at all the schools, so that children wishing to partake in the procession may be able to register. Each group of children will be in the care of certain young ladies, and will be trained for their parts. Sample costumes are now on view at the Orphanage. A hearty invitation is

MONTREAL

These are the days when the "Call of the Wild" runs to its 19th vellum edition; and the youth of the species, losing all interest in victuals, work and weddings, feels an over-whelming U-R-G-E to explore the "Vast Unpaved," sans powder-puff or curlers. We spoke to Raisel about it, and she told us plenty! It seems she spent last summer at a girls' camp. . . . All went well until a tent-mate was wished upon her. Said tent-mate had tried the difficult experiment of engaging herself to three men at the same time, and . . . had been sent to camp to get over the effects. Raisel says she didn't mind being awakened in the mosquitoed watches of the night and made to listen to long post-impressionist whispers about "what he said" and "when he said it." Nor did she mind it—much—when her tent-mate went into hysterics regularly three times a day when her mail didn't please her, when the tent-flaps flapped too flappily and when her special complexion soap disappeared . . . But the night of the terrible thunder-storm when the rain dripped through the sixteen odd holes in the canvas, Raisel's patience was exhausted. After scolding her tent-mate out of hysterics half-a-dozen times and getting her snugly waterproofed into her cot, Rajsel yawned a long-drawn yawn, and slept the sleep of the innocent but injured. . . . She doesn't know whether it was the thunder or the stream of water that spattered on her forehead that awakened her—but she does know that in a sudden flash of lightning, she saw her erstwhile chum whimpering and moaning in a corner of the tent with a wide-open umbrella held high above her head!

Which brings to mind the Boys' Camp that is being run by the Mount Royal Lodge of the Independent Order of the B'nai B'rith. Last year, 83 boys of poor Jewish families were given a glorious two weeks' vacation at the Camp of Ste. Adele. In most cases, the boys were recommended by the Family Welfare Department of the Baron de Hirsch Institute, the Juvenile Court Workers, or the Talmud Torahs. Although this year a site has not yet been decided on, every effort is being made to increase the accommodation, so that over one hundred boys may be taken care of. An appeal is being made to the 250 members of the Mount Royal Lodge for $2,000, with which to "carry on." Mr. Max Bernfeld, Chairman of the Camp Committee, is optimistic in his feelings for the greater success of the Camp.

As we have frequently gone on record as saying, Young Judaea has just completed a particularly active and successful year. We have just received a copy of the "Judaean"—the official publication of the Federation of Young Judaea of Canada—which is edited by Mr. Philip Joseph, of Montreal. The "Judaean," which will be issued monthly, has many good things within its covers, inasmuch as it is an intelligent effort to give Young Judaeans an honest picture of the Home Land, and at the same time, to enable them to keep in touch with the activities of their co-workers throughout Canada. We can do no better than quote Mr. A. J. Freiman, of Ottawa, who says that ". . . . the decision to publish a monthly paper is further evidence that the affairs of Young Judaea are in the hands of aggressive, far-sighted leaders, who will do all that is possible to advance our cause."

N. S. Fineberg was re-elected president, and J. S. Leo first vice-president, of the Hebrew Free Loan Association at the annual meeting held at Zionist Headquarters, Sherbrooke Street West, on Sunday last. The new directors elected for the ensuing two years were Joseph Fineberg, N. H. Godlinsky, J. B. Miller, Philip Cohen, M. Feldman and B. Glickman. Other directors are S. M. Eisenstadt, Isaac Gold, J. A. Jacobs, M. Lavut, Arthur A. Markus and S. Richler.

Dave Rafolovitch, of Montreal, is announced prizeman in the first year dentistry results, published at McGill University last week. Nor is that all! Although in his freshman year, Mr. Rafolovitch has carried off honors in athletic circles as well—considerably strengthening the McGill Basket-ball Team.

In spite of the cold weather great success attended the garden fete given by the Miriam Brainin-Ortenberg Hadassah, on the lawn of the home of Mrs. J. Moscovitch, Rockland Avenue. Over three hundred guests were present. For those wishing to play cards, tables were placed on the lawn and in the house, which were beautifully decorated with the Zionist colors, blue and white. Among those who helped to entertain the guests were Miss Sylvia Fish, who recited; Mr. Shapiro, violinist, and several others. Financial results will be announced later.

Mrs. S. Holdengreber, of Bathurst, N.B., was hostess at the last of the season's meetings of the Sybil Cohen Chapter of Hadassah. Rabbi Zlotnick gave an extremely interesting address. Thanks were expressed to Mr. S. Holdengreber for the donation of five dollars towards the Fund. The following were chosen as delegates to the Zionist Convention: Mrs. M. H. Cohen, Mrs. S. Holdenberger, Miss Esther Bindman and Miss Anna Bindman.

A regular meeting of the Deborah Chapter of Junior Hadassah was held at the Zionist Headquarters on June 5th, with Miss Esther Fitch in the chair. Miss Minette Brooke read a very interesting paper on the "Relations Between the Jews and Arabs in Palestine," after which an intelligent discussion took place. At this meeting the motion was passed that the Chapter support a Palestinian orphan. Miss Dolly Klinberg and Miss Minette Brooke were elected to represent the Society at the coming Convention, and Miss Victoria Dinoristzer was chosen to represent the Hadassah Convention.

Once, ages ago, we won a multi-coloured flags-of-all-nations cushion at Dominion Park. And, ever since then, we just simply can't help holding our breath and taking a fling at everything in the "Wheel of Fortune" line. The winning number in the Central Chapter of Hadassah raffle was 227—but— we didn't get that number!

The Westmount Junior Chapter of Hadassah held a most enjoyable and successful summer dance at Victoria Hall on the evening of Tuesday, June the thirteenth, when about 200 "Summer Girls and Boys" were gathered together. The feature of the evening

CLOAK PARLEY TO CONTINUE

New York (J.P.A.)—Failing to make any headway toward a new agreement last week, the sub-committee of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association will resume joint conferences to-morrow in an effort to reach an amicable settlement without a strike.

The question of eliminating the so-called "social" or small shops in the industry, it was stated, is now before the committee. Questions of wages and working conditions are expected to come up to-morrow.

Because of the necessity of getting a new contract to take the place of the one which expired on June 1, the joint conferences will be held twice a day daily until a decision is reached. In the meantime the 50,000 cloakmakers in the New York market will remain at work under the old agreement.

Rival (J.P.A.)—The first Jewish gymnasium is about to open here. It will enjoy all the privileges of other schools of its class.
